

Students Learn About Themselves Clip 2 Transcript

So, there's this quote... okay, it's going to sound so cheesy, but there's this quote by, I think, Margaret Mead, "Never doubt that a small group of volunteers can NOT make a difference for they are the only thing that ever has." It's like really rough, but it's along those lines. So I think after joining clubs, especially like grade seven when I really started and I was in everything, I started to actually understand what the meaning is behind that. I mean there're so many quotes out there and sometimes you just assume there is meaning and everything. But I actually understand it and I actually believe in it and I know that it's true. So I mean I learnt that I can actually make a difference. As cheesy as it sounds, you learn that kind of stuff and there's nothing you can do about it. There's no other way you can put it. And I learned I can get along with different people a lot better than I thought, communication wise especially. And I also learned my belonging in the world, not only what kind of, like, the social grouping I'm with, but also like the other groupings. Like I learned that I'm not the only person in the world and we are not the only country in the world. So I learned about all the different other countries and places and everything, and how we interact, and how we should all help out with each other I guess.
