

Students Learned About Themselves Clip 9 Transcript

Speaker 1: I learned really about my interests, I learned about what I'd like to study in university. I really figured out what my calling was. I'm pretty young so I don't know if that's going to stick with me. I really learned about my calling and I really learned what I want to do. I learned that I can be an approachable person. I can continue to improve myself. That I'm not really stuck and static. We all go through these stages in high school that sometimes we're not as confident in ourselves, or we're look at how people are judging us. But that really eliminated it. That positive involvement, those really nice people who brought me in really compelled me to do the same for other people. I used to be that kid in the corner, I know how it feels really. With that understanding, I really put my hand out there and try to make people as comfortable as possible. So that's the greatest amount of learning I got, it's really outside of the classroom.

Speaker 2: I totally agree with what he said. I used to be like one of those kids who's really shy. I definitely learned how these clubs can bring positive impact on you and how more approachable I can be with other people.
