

Student Voices on Discrimination Clip 7 Transcript

I would say similarly, the idea that when you come into the school in grade 9, it really sets the tone. You see there is a club for every culture so it doesn't make sense to discriminate one club because it's a norm. As soon as you come to the school, you know that there's going to be clubs there and it's because of their availability and accessibility of these clubs that I would argue that we don't really have that discrimination. I've never felt any discrimination. One thing that I would say that is a little relevant, is that I did have a discussion with someone who felt that they didn't like the idea of having cultural clubs at schools because they fundamentally believed it was too religious to be involved in a public school, and I had that conversation with him and said you're welcome to come anytime to see that what we're doing is cultural and it's not so much religious. To me, I keep that as an example of that people don't always know what's happening in the clubs, and it's interesting to see that exists or that happens.
