

Students Learned About Themselves Clip 6 Transcript

Speaker 1: As a result of being in the gay-straight alliance, my mom keeps suspecting that I'm gay so I guess I guess I learned that I'm not, for one thing. I discovered about myself what my values are, and how they differ from other people, or how they're similar to people who I would have never thought share the same values as me.

Speaker 2: For me, joining all these groups has helped me a lot with my social skills. It helped me to go to someone new say hi, how's it going, did you see the Leaf's game or something. Just start off a little conversation. With these clubs, we meet all these new people who sometimes share the same qualities. Like in the Christian Club, we can all come together know that whenever we need someone's back we're there for them and that's really helped me a lot.

Speaker 3: For SASSY and Equity, it helped me understand that people don't share the same beliefs as I do, so I shouldn't jump to conclusions and go at their throats if they don't believe the same thing I do. I have to give them time to be able to accept the things that I believe in as well.

Speaker 4: Me to We has taught me that you can make a change if you want to. You can make action and inform people and that can really make a difference. We've raised thousands of dollars and it's going to help people we may never meet but we help people with their lives.
